DR. GABRIELE MIOTTO, OWNER, ME PLASTIC SURGERY ATLANTA

Dr. Miotto is a dual board-certified, internationally recognized plastic surgeon, specializing in aesthetic surgery of the face, eyes, and breast. She believes that plastic surgery is an amazing tool that helps women look and feel their best when the focus is on elegance, precision, balance, and a respect for anatomy. Dr. Miotto has her private practice, ME Plastic Surgery, in Buckhead, Atlanta. She is also an Adjunct Associate Professor at Emory University and has been a plastic surgery teacher, speaker, and mentor for more than a decade in national and international conferences. Aesthetic surgery is her passion, she loves being a lifelong student and mentor, and this passion shows when it comes to her patient care.

WHO INFLUENCED YOU THE MOST?

The women in my family have long appreciated beauty and precision. They directly and indirectly showed me a type of understated elegance in the way they lived and presented themselves. From my great-grandmother to my mother, they all had a great eye for beauty, craftsmanship, and elegance. I have also cultivated a joy for life that influences me on a daily basis. The appreciation of beauty, symmetry, and the details of things- especially in nature, have always been a great way for me to get inspired.

WHAT DOES WOMEN'S EMPOWERMENT MEAN TO YOU?

The freedom to be who you really are and use your skills to serve and live your life from your heart.

HOW ARE YOU SUPPORTING THE NEXT GENERATION OF FEMALE LEADERS?

I am a mentor for countless of women in healthcare, including many female surgeons from as early as medical school to graduated colleagues. I love seeing women grow and expressing their full potential.

WHAT IS THE BEST ADVICE YOU HAVE EVER RECIEVED?

Focus on yourself and your skills and live your life with passion and clarity. And always take care of yourself, this is a gift to the world.
